DOCTOR'S LIFE NOT ALL JOY

Certainly Some Drawbacks to the Profession. If This Incident is Correctly Reported.

This story is told by the wife of a physician living in a small town in central Kansas to illustrate some of the drawbacks to the medical profession. "We were attending church, something rather unusual for us, together with a visiting cousin and the doctor, who was a member of the telephone office came in search of the doctor. The minister paused in his sermon until they were safely out of the church. Then the baby, who was partial to his father, became so unruly on being left in my charge, that I, too, was compelled to leave the church. When we reached home the minister's discourse. Then it occurred to the cousin that he had the key to the office and that the doctor was in the house. He unlocked the door, and the minister, who was a member of the church, requiring a third intervention in the morning worship. "When we reached home the minister was swinging lazily in the hammock. "Didn't you have a busy call to an accident case or something of that sort?" demanded the unsophisticated cousin. "Oh, no," replied the medical man. "Just my old Swedish friend in New Gotland phoned to inquire if he could have a 'little' sugar in his coffee!" —Kansas City Star.

QUEEN MARY'S TEAS

Simple Gatherings For Workers in War Charities Are Frequent

Queen Mary's weekly tea parties have become a feature of this popular London season during war time. But only workers in the war charities and relief organizations are invited. Every week the Queen makes out a list of persons whom she wishes to confer upon the many war charities in which she is interested. These tea parties are held in the Queen's boudoir, the walls of which are adorned with paintings signed by kings, queens, princes and princesses, among which are some exquisite formal paintings by the late Princess Marie of Denmark. The latter was the first who brought together King Edward and his brother-in-law, King Alexander III, and gave the first impulse to the Franco-British alliance and later to the Entente cordiale between France and Britain. Servants are completely absent. Queen Mary herself makes the tea. Princess Marie fills the cups and everybody helps herself to cakes. An hour and a half are devoted to the discussion of the numerous charitable undertakings have lapsed from this room. Queen Mary wants to be informed of everything, and, practical as she is, she suggests many improvements and gives many new ideas. When the discussion is over the Queen invariably presents a large album and shows her guests the latest photos taken at the front by the Prince of Wales. Occasionally the Queen reads extracts from his letters. At 5 o'clock Queen Mary takes up a position near the door and the guests are each presented with the Royal tea is over.

GIFTS TO MOTHERLAND

Canada Set Ball Rolling For All Colonies

Mr. W. E. Dowling says: "Canada's gift of four heads a record that encircles the globe. There have been given to the Old Country to help her in the struggle, cheese from Quebec (four million pounds of it), potatoes from New Brunswick, salmon from British Columbia, coal from Nova Scotia, oats and hay from Prince Edward Island, hares from Saskatchewan, apples from Ontario, sheep-skins, butter, rabbits, beef, condensed milk, arrowroot, port wine, trawls, preserved fruits, sugar, jam, biscuits, and many other things from Australia; eggs from New Zealand, tea from Ceylon, bullocks from East Africa, fruit from the Straits Settlements, apples from Tasmania, sugar from Barbados and Mauritius, rice grown by East Indian colonists in British Guiana, and sent to the Indian tropics in France, cocoa from the Windward Islands, limes and oranges and coconuts from Trinidad, arrowroot from St. Vincent, guava jelly from Montserrat, citrons and jams from the West Indies generally. All this comes from the products of the Empire given without stint. And what a list it is! Enough to make a poor hungry Hun's mouth water."

CARE OF THE HANDS

If the hands are red and rough they may be made white and soft and kept so with very little care. Rub the hands with spirits of camphor three times a day for one week; this will harden the outer skin, or cuticle, which is really the only portion of the skin which suffers from hard usage. The next thing to do is to rub the hands well with camphor leaf each night before retiring, and wear a pair of kid gloves about two sizes too large. Whenever you have occasion to use the hands in soap and water, as soon as through take vinegar and water—half and half—and rinse the hands; this counteracts the alkali in the soap, which is the cause of redness and roughness. First the nails must be washed and scrubbed. After that, with acetone and a file, trim the nails into shape, rounded, not pointed, and just long enough in the middle to balance the half-moon below. Take an orange stick and push the flesh back from the nail, getting under the edge and using it to loosen the skin. Use the orange stick every day, and always rub the flesh back from the nails whenever using a towel. Always keep a piece of lemon on the washstand to take out stains. The lemon also whitens the hands when it is rubbed over them.

Letters from the Front

Somewhere in France, June 24th, '17.

This is Sunday once again, but not a day of rest, at least over here, as everybody is on the move every day of the year. However, I guess it must be so or we cannot expect to win.

How is that for an introduction? "Fruit-a-lives" Well, let me see, the letter is complete without a few well-chosen words on the weather. Over here, however, it is not possible to adequately describe it. An American visiting London once remarked: "England had no climate, it was all samples." Out here in France that statement that we have all the same in one day. At the present moment I am lying fully dressed in bed—it is the only way to keep warm. Last evening I was out late with a party, so I am supposed to be sleeping now. My bed consists of a straw-mat on the ground and a great-coat laid on the ground sheltered by a square of canvas called a bivvy. The rain is pattering on the canvas not far away, and Mr. Fritz is getting back what he gave our brave fellows at first.

Can you hear the whirr of the aeroplanes as they pass overhead—"The eyes of our guns." Beside me trying to overcome the noise of the guns with his song, is George Mabein. He and I were out with a party the other night near the front line, just as we got nicely into our work, the German gun opened up on us and he and I, with a corporal, took refuge in a bomb-store with bombs. No sooner were we in that Hun shell burst in the trench and blocked up the door. Only a small hole was left in the roof, and it was through this that we climbed after Fritz had quieted down. It is very funny to hear him tell the story. Such is life in active service.

Aye, many a French soldier will remember it, though it may not have been the hardest fight, yet I think it has struck Red Deer the hardest in one blow. What a victory, and at such a price! We can call our lucky stars we came through without a wound. Poor Harold Muldrew—I cannot help but think of him, he was such a splendid fellow at school too, and to have his life snapped off in the youth—it seems hard lines, still what is, must be, I suppose.

If I were to walk outside, I could see nearly three graveyards where are buried the "Sons of France," who fought so valiantly here a year ago. There they lie—their tombstone, a rude wooden cross, but their monument to be raised in the page of history. What a great row these crosses represent! Dear old France, through it all may rise supreme, a better and a grander nation because of this trial by fire.

Soon shall come our turn—may we not be found wanting in this greatest fight of all time.

Hurrah! dinner has just come in a regular feast today, for we had meat and potatoes. Grab is one of our big difficulties out here, and it is the subject of many a good laugh. Isn't it peculiar how fat one gets on "army grub"?

Yesterday we had a great day for our aeroplanes. We had up observation balloons and so did Fritz. At one time I counted 28 of our planes in the air at one time, and also saw a fight in which we were unfortunate enough to lose one machine. But we even up, for about three hours later, three of our machines waited over the money's lines, and in spite of all the guns which opened on them, they brought down two of his balloons in flames—a very pretty, but terrible sight. What could we do without our aircraft?

But enough of this war talk; the really interesting news we cannot tell, for information is useful to the enemy.

How is everybody in Red Deer? I suppose it is still on the map? The old boys have shown their sterling worth in the army—I've met quite a few out here. The other day some one beckoned me, and whom should I see but Percy Lagrow. He is in the 102nd, and from what I can hear he still causes lots of trouble to poor Fritz.

This is too long now, so I will cease. Regards to all my friends, both in Red Deer and vicinity. I am, Your loving son,

WILLIAM McILWRATH
183709, 8th C.M.G.C.

P.S.—The following poem was written by a person you know very well:

Vinny Ridge, we'll never forget it, We'll forget that blood red field; Where our soldiers fought so bravely Fought, Britannia's flag to shield.

Brave fellows fell, in death victorious, Some were aging, some were young. Never one but made the sacrifice To keep the Union Jack far flung.

Bright young laddies, just from High School, Men, with life's course in the prime. Yet they left their homes and loved ones, To join the glorious "Allied" line.

How the shrapnel rained upon them, How the bullets sped fast death. Still they carried on, victorious, Still they fought with dying breath.

How the horrid shells came shrieking, Ripped and tore the very earth, Whistled round our gallant laddies As if they mocked and laughed in mirth.

Soldiers saw their comrades shattered, Saw them blown to very bits; Numbering up the heavy toll, The toll they soon would ask of Fritz.

Soldiers saw, thus comrades shattered, Comrades that they loved so well; Saw them give their life so freely In that scathing surging hell.

Still they kept up smiling faces, Died, scarce knowing they were hit. Cheerfully they gave their greatest Determined sure "to do their bit."

Terrible the field of battle, Terrible the gory slain, Dying, wounded, all around them, But they fought and fought again.

That was where the brave Canadians Made the sacrifice again, Though it cost them, aye so dearly, We know that it was not in vain.

Vinny Ridge! yes, we remember, Its echoes roll to sea to sea. One more column deeply rooted, At the door of victory.

Hands Across Border

YOU wouldn't exactly call it a lake, but Canada is a lake; but Canada is a part of England. Anybody who is driving at it this time.

Colonel J. S. Dennis, officer commanding the western division of the British Recruiting Mission, recently clapped hands with Captain F. R. Fenner, officer commanding the recruiting mission of Northern Illinois for the United States Army.

When two belligerent parties shake hands there are only two winners—the referees or third party can say either "Take your breath" or "Bless you, my children."

I shall neither. But I held my breath for it was an impressive moment, the formal enactment in Chicago of human history: the physical union of the fighting strength of two great nations. And the spirit of poetic co-operation in the common cause of justice sanctified the alliance.

Colonel Dennis and Captain Fenner joined in plans. What they want is men to send to the front. Neither has any chance as to whether the men go in Canadian kilts or American khakis.

Very few one of the dozens of scattered stations under Captain Fenner's command volunteers of Canadian citizenship are being taken for the expeditionary forces of the Dominion; at every headquarters where Colonel Dennis has control volunteers of American allegiance are being taken for our own National Army.

Captain Fenner is credited with being a bit of a bore on the subject of recruiting. But he was immensely impressed with the policies and ideas expressed by the distinguished Canadian man of war.

The solid work of British military here will show some fireworks illustrative of the spirit that created and immortalized Canada's first 100,000. A little hand will whip it up, there will be mass meetings and noonday oratory and thousands of direct appeals by mail and an advertising and propaganda campaign with no limits determined.

Colonel Dennis says that there are 157,000 Canadians in Chicago. Calgary with a total population of 50,000 sent 15,000 soldiers to the front. What then might Chicago yield? There are about 350,000 British subjects here, and some sixty-five St. George and Maple Leaf societies. There is no shortage of material here about for the British recruiting mission.

A thrillingly interesting man is Colonel Dennis. He is the most versatile individual I have ever met. If one were suddenly to inquire of him, "Who is Dennis?" one might get back the typically British answer, "Who is he not?"

For years he was assistant to the president of the Canadian Pacific Railway, Lord Sharncliffe. He has fought Indians in a veteran with honors of the South African expedition, has engineered road building where Indians had to be killed as regularly as flies had to be laid in the progress; but he is more—he is a dilettante journalist, a devotee of art, a snappy after dinner talker, an occasional enthusiastic Broadwayman, a raconteur of modest but fascinating personality. Robust and mighty of stature, he rings with military melody all over. The colonel is making headquarters in the Marquette building and his residence at the Blackstone. Welcome to our city—by, oratory and thousands of direct appeals by mail and an advertising and propaganda campaign with no limits determined.

Government Acquires 9,513 Miles of Lines In Taking Over C.N.R.

Sir Thomas White Gives Details of Federal Plan for Nationalization of Great Transcontinental Railway System

OTTAWA, August 1.—In explaining to the house the taking over of the C.N.R. by the government, Sir Thomas White said that the finances of the Grand Trunk railway were entirely satisfactory with the exception only of their contingent liability, which was a heavy one in respect to the securities of the Grand Trunk Pacific, which they had guaranteed. As for the Canadian Northern railway, its revenues were such that after paying all fixed charges they had a surplus. The question might be asked why did they require aid? The answer was simple, any railway system requires continual expenditure for extensions and betterments. The situation in regard to the Canadian Northern was that any surplus was required for betterments.

SHORT OF CASH

The company was short of cash to meet interest upon its outstanding securities. In peace times, securities could be floated for such purposes, but this was impossible at the present time. In addition, there were short-term liabilities of about 100,000,000 dollars. It was not possible for the company, by the issue of permanent securities to refund that debt. The trouble was that the Canadian Northern railway had continually to ask for aid.

Sir Thomas said the amount required by the Grand Trunk Pacific to meet fixed charges and the deficit upon operating account and for needed betterments, and absolutely necessary rolling stock was about $7,500,000 for the coming year. He reminded the house that when parliament gave the subsidy to the Canadian Northern railway in 1913 and a guarantee of $45,000,000 in 1914 it was provided that the government should become the owner of 400,000 shares to the par value of $100,000,000 out of the issue of stock of $100,000,000. These 400,000 shares were owned absolutely by the government on behalf of the people of Canada and there was, therefore, 600,000 shares at a par value of $100,000,000 in the hands of private owners, and the balance of the greater part of the stock was pledged.

ABSOLUTE CONTROL

The government proposed, he said, to acquire the whole of the $100,000,000 of stock for the people of Canada. With the $40,000,000 par value of stock which they now had, there would be a balance of 600,000 shares, no longer privately owned, to renew its line and to acquire the necessary rolling stock; the Grand Trunk Pacific would be enabled to avoid default and make necessary betterments. In other words, the entire railway situation in Canada would be greatly improved and insured to the benefit of the people.

As for the board of directors it would be for the Dominion government to say what the personnel would be. Speaking offhand, he would say there were in connection with the Canadian Northern railway some exceedingly capable officials, men like Mr. McLeod, Mr. Hanna and Mr. Mitchell, and the government would be wise to retain as far as possible the services of these men in connection with the administration of the system.

WILL CO-OPERATE

Mr. German asked about Sir Wm. MacKenzie, and Sir Thomas replied that he believed Sir William and Sir Donald Mann would co-operate with the government in every way possible and would be prepared at any time to vacate their seats on the board at the request of the government of Canada. As to the board, when the transaction was completed, it would be open to the government to determine what the best course would be.

In reply to Mr. Nesbitt, he said it was perfectly clear that the administration of the line would not be under the governor-in-council. It was true the governor-in-council would have the power to elect the board, but it was proposed that the operation should be through the board of directors. The government would name the boards and the boards in turn will administer assistance. After the board was constituted, the vacancies arising would be filled by the remaining members; in other words, it would be a complete sovereignty in itself—self-perpetuating; it would be outside the control of politics, but, of course, would not be free of parliament. Sir Thomas then gave notice of the following resolutions:

THE RESOLUTIONS

"That his majesty may acquire, on such terms and conditions satisfactory to the governor-in-council as may be set out in the agreement to be made with the owners and pledges of not less than five-sixths thereof and for a price to be determined as hereinafter provided, the six hundred thousand shares of capital stock for the Canadian Northern Railway company, par value sixty million dollars now held by the minister of finance in trust for his majesty."

"That the governor-in-council shall appoint one arbitrator, the said owners and pledges shall appoint another, and the two so appointed shall appoint a third, or failing agreement as to such appointment, the third arbitrator shall be appointed by the senior judge of the exchequer court."

"That the said arbitrators shall determine the value of the said six hundred thousand shares as of the date of the said agreement and the said arbitrators shall proceed in a summary way and may apply their own judgment in determining such value and may receive with respect thereto such reports and statements authenticated in such way as they may decide and such evidence as they may deem necessary or helpful, examine witnesses under oath and hear the parties by counsel or representatives, and that if the determination is not unanimous an appeal from such determination shall lie to the supreme court of Canada on behalf of the governor-in-council or of the owner of pledges on any question of law or fact, such appeal to be made within thirty days from the rendering of the determination."

FROM REVENUE FUND

"That the amount of value so determined shall be paid out of the consolidated revenue fund or other source secured in accordance with the terms of the said agreement."

"That on the making of the said agreement, at least five-sixths of the said six hundred thousand shares shall be transferred to the minister of finance in trust for His Majesty and if there be any of said six hundred thousand shares not transferred as aforesaid, the governor-in-council may declare said share to be the property of the minister of finance in trust for His Majesty and the same shall thereupon become the property of His Majesty and shall be paid for pro rata with the shares so transferred."

"That so soon as said five-sixths of said shares have been transferred as aforesaid, the governor-in-council may assist the Canadian Northern Railway company, or any company included in the Canadian Northern Railway system in paying and settling any indebtedness of the company or postponing the payment thereof on such terms as may be agreed upon, and for such purposes may make advances out of the consolidated revenue fund, may guarantee payment in whole or in part, and may give the obligations or securities of the government in connection therewith."

DEALS WITH SECURITIES

"That the Canadian Northern Railway company and each company included in the Canadian Northern Railway system shall from time to time do such acts and things, make and issue such agreements, obligations and securities in connection with the payment or settlement or postponement of payment of the said claims as the minister of finance may require."

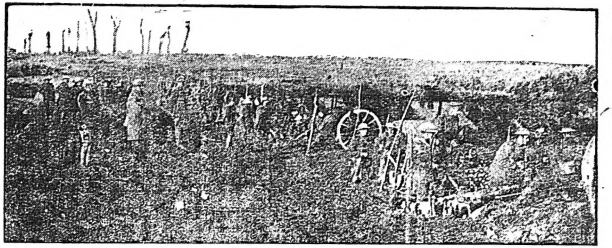

"That the necessary qualification shares for directors may be transferred to or allowed to remain in their names by the minister of finance on such conditions as he may determine."

Hon. George P. Graham said that next to the war this was perhaps the greatest question which parliament had been called upon to decide. The success of the war would depend upon the management. It would not be like the Intercolonial railway, for it would be in competition with the Canadian Pacific railway, the greatest transportation corporation in the world. If we were to give public ownership on a large scale a fair trial we must have the right to direct it of all political environments. Canada was not quite in the position, he said, of the United States which had allowed 75 per cent. of its railways to go into the receivers' hands at one time or another.

railways by reason of guarantees of bonds and aids. Also, he would not agree to put railways in the receivers' hands for they were necessary to us at this time of war. He was inclined to the belief that the Grand Trunk Pacific railway, the pioneer railway of Canada, had not been treated fairly by the Brayton-Acworth report, but he disavowed the Canadian Northern as the best gathering system in eastern Canada. He noted that the government would have great obligations. The Montreal tunnel could not go unchallenged and reminded the government that what people would accept from the Canadian Northern Railway they would not accept from a government-owned road.

He referred to the scarcity of rolling stock on all lines and he noted the lack of steamship connection between the Grand Trunk Pacific and the Orient at Prince Rupert as well as the lack of feeders to the western country. In closing he reminded the house that the N. T. R. ran through a magnificent strip of country and in years to come it would have a local traffic that would vie with the local traffic of any other road.

THE OUTLOOK

Unless all signs fail, the western provinces are coming to see that there is only one straight course to pursue at the present time, and that course is unswerving loyalty to our country and to the brave boys fighting our battles at the front.

Perhaps no paper has criticized Dr. Michael Clark more strongly than "The News" in the past on his political views, but we want to say that no man has pursued a more honorable course during the past trying out time in the House of Commons than the member for Red Deer. He has "showed to the line" with a singleness of purpose that is an inspiration to all loyal sons of the Empire.

There seems at this time but one course to adopt, and that is the formation of a Union Government composed of the loyal members of all political parties until the end of the war, with but one idea and that idea is unswerving loyalty to our country and to the brave boys fighting our battles at the front. Nothing else counts at the present time. All political parties must agree to sink their differences for our country's good. That far cry from the trenches for more men is heard throughout the land. Our sons cannot be left to die without an effort to help them in the struggle for the life of the Empire. Conscription must be put into force, and with a strong Union Government, this can be done in no other way, and Canada will then come into her own.

THE ONE ISSUE

As the outstanding exponent of free trade in Canada, Dr. Michael Clark has long been one of the most extreme, and at the same time one of the most eloquent, Liberals in the Dominion. But he recognizes that in the shadow of the present world crisis there is no place for economic or other ancient party shibboleths. The fate of Canada and Great Britain and civilization are in the balance. The honor of the Canadian army is in question. That army contains four of Dr. Clark's sons, and he cannot find it in his heart to desert them. Sir Wilfrid Laurier and the anti-conscriptors, members of his party have abandoned the country's defenders. As the member for Red Deer says, the Opposition leader has stepped down from the wider walks of Imperial statesmanship into the narrower paths of Provincialism. He and those who are working with him are all at rest on one issue—Bourassa's house. "The Nationalist" has been drawing Sir Wilfrid Laurier, Mr. Pugsley, Mr. Oliver and the whole lot of delinquent timber into the barrel. The issue is clear. If Britain falls Canada also falls. Stay freedom in Britain and freedom also disappears in Canada. Who lives if England dies, who dies if England lives?—Toronto News.

to parliamentary representation for some time to come, because nothing they can say with their mouths about the war can conceal what they would actually do with their hands if returned, namely, paralyze the country's efforts. If, on the other hand, the Clark spirit dominates, what course is open except loyal co-operation with Sir Robert Borden, the only political leader who holds sway from ocean to ocean and whose policy represents the true purpose of this nation?

COMPULSION AND FREEDOM
Toronto News: Canada, like other Allied countries, is cursed with faint-hearted folk who shiver at the notion of compulsion. They forget that compulsion is constant in a Democracy. Taxes are collected under compulsion. Force is used to keep children at school. A man cannot even drive his motor as he desires. He cannot build a house in a city without complying with the by-laws. In the rural districts the Government may destroy poultry for the general benefit. Fool brood in an apiary is not permitted. Our whole life is hedged about with restrictions. Compulsion of the individual for the benefit of the community is the soul of freedom. The empty cry that we have no right to conscript our citizens, even in the face of the most barbarous and savage of enemies, is the whimper of a child and could not come from an adult intellect.

SIR WILFRID'S ATTITUDE
Winning Free Press: Sir Wilfrid objects that the bill was enacted by a moribund parliament. This is so; but a new parliament, fresh from the people, will be on control before the act is in operation. This meets the objection.

Sir Wilfrid thinks that it was a mistake to enact the bill without consulting the people by means of a referendum. The people are now to be consulted by means of a general election. The referendum has its uses in our system of government, but it can never take the place of a general election. If a consultation of the people is desirable before enforcing the act, the right procedure is being followed.

Thus the act will become effective only if the people, after ample opportunity for consideration, declare themselves in favor of it and return a house of commons which will see to its enforcement.

The objections that the law has been enacted by a decrepit parliament, without consultation with the people, thus lose their force. Sir Wilfrid advanced them for the second time in his speech on the third reading, but he cannot hope to employ them in the campaign. The arguments now go by the board, and Sir Wilfrid will be required to discuss a clear issue.

If his speech on the third reading be read with discretion, no difficulty will be found in ascertaining Sir Wilfrid's attitude towards the issue now under discussion.

Sir Wilfrid Laurier is prepared to send to the front those Canadians who will voluntarily enlist for service; but he will not agree to what he terms coercion.

One searches the speech in vain for any indication of the extent of the further contribution of man-power by Canada that Sir Wilfrid Laurier regards as necessary, beyond the large question mark he places against Sir Robert Borden's pledge of a total contribution of half a million men. His insistence upon the danger of impeding the national industries by drafts upon our man-power is a sufficiently clear index to his thoughts.

I.W.W. LEADER HANGED

Frank Little, Member of Executive, Strung Up in Butte

BUTTE, Mont., August 1.—Frank Little, member of the executive board of the Industrial Workers of the World, and prominent in labor troubles in Arizona, was taken from a lodging house early today by masked men and hanged to a railroad trestle on the outskirts of the city. The body was cut down at 8 a.m. by the chief of police, Jerry Murphy, who identified it. Little, in a recent speech here, referred to "United States troops as 'Uncle Sam's Nazis in Uniform.'"

ALLIES WITHDRAWING

Troops Being Taken Out of Old Greece, Thessaly and Epirus

ATHENS, July 30th. (Delayed.)—Withdrawal of the allied forces from old Greece, Thessaly and Epirus, in accordance with the decision of the Balkan conference at Paris, is being rapidly carried out. The last French troops left Piræus today. The Italians are preparing to leave Janina and other sections of Epirus, retaining only a small triangle near Avlona, in Albania.

Preparations are under way in Greece to call out the classes of 1916 and 1917, aggregating 60,000 men.

If Laurier Wins

In the presence of one thousand business men, at the Canadian Club luncheon, Sir Clifford Sifton today declared the only hope of electing a government that will prosecute the war as Canada wants it prosecuted is by a union of the forces in the Dominion which favor conscription, regardless of political lines.

In this he was most emphatic, and that at the Liberal convention of the west next week he hoped, and believed, such an agreement would be arranged by which no possible split on candidates favorable to conscription would be possible. If it was, then a third candidate would slip into parliament in many seats who would vote with the forces behind Laurier to prevent further aid to our fighting men.

A LOGICAL APPEAL
If we could logical appeal for a union of Liberals who favor conscription and the Conservatives, Sifton said the facts are that we are to have an election. Laurier will go into the fight with possibly eighty seats certain for him in which it will not be worth while to put up a conscriptionist candidate. This, out of a possible 230 seats, makes it questionable if Borden can win on a straight party fight.

He said he regarded it as a tragedy that the silver-haired old man, who had devoted so many years of his life to his country, should now find himself where Laurier does, but as a former colleague and still a friend he (Sifton) knew that it was the parting of the ways, and he was to save Canada and help save the liberty of the world.

OUT OF THE WAR
That if the forces represented by Laurier win, and they would win, he believed, if the Liberals and Conservatives in the west insisted on fighting this approaching election on a strict party basis, then Canada is out of the war.

He was cheered to the echo. This statement, it is believed, reflects what the Liberal convention this week so that only one conscriptionist candidate, he is Liberal or Conservative, will run in each constituency.

FAIR DIRECTORS MEET

At the meeting of the directors of the Red Deer Agricultural Society on Saturday to wind up matters after the 1917 Fair, there were present Mr. Welliver, president, in the chair; Mr. Lindsay, secretary; Mr. Bjorkeland, Mr. Kenny, Mr. Cole, Mr. Olson, Mr. Tallman, Mr. McKinnon, Mr. McPherson.

Re change of basis of Dominion government grant of $2500—the Dominion government asking $6500 and in prize for 1917 instead of $5000 to qualify for grant—a requirement which the Red Deer Fair board could not meet this year, owing to prize list having been printed before the new requirement as to additional prize money paid out.

One minor protest had been settled, and prizes were withheld in one case pending production of registration certificates.

The Secretary-Treasurer read a provisional financial report of the 1917 Fair, showing payments of $9,639.22, and receipts of $9,463.05, a deficit of $176.27. Had it not been for the unexpected extra prize list requirement of the Dominion government of $1500, of which the directors at very short notice net $500, there would have been a surplus.

The directors could not see their way to grant charges for Red Cross concession privileges, owing to deficit on 1917 Fair. Messrs. E. W. Bjorkeland, H. F. Kenny, F. H. Tallman, H. G. Stone and J. A. McPherson were appointed a committee to consider ways and means on increasing the efficiency of the Fair by a measure of reorganization and committee to report at the December annual meeting. A radical new line of policy will have to be adopted in regard to providing for prize list on the Dominion government basis, if a measure of attractions is to be kept up.

The accounts presented were ordered to be held when confirmed by the Secretary and Mr. Day, live stock superintendent.

The Society expressed, on motion, their appreciation of the work of the judges and stewards and others who assisted at the 1917 Fair.

WILL STOP EVASIONS

Applicants for Marriage Licenses Must Show Registration Cards

NEW YORK, August 1.—An order that applicants for marriage licenses here today be required to show their military registration cards was expected to put an end to the rush of men of conscription age to escape service in the national army. Yesterday many admitted they were being urged to evade the military draft and but few of the 527 men granted licenses were not of military age.

Dr. Clark Leading Union Government Forces in West

OTTAWA, July 31.—Interest today is centered entirely in the upper chamber, where the second reading of the military service bill will be moved by Sir James Lougheed. There is little interest in the debate, but there is the deepest interest in the announcement of the stand of Senator Bostock, Liberal leader. Ottawa cannot bring itself to believe that he will vote against the measure. He is an Englishman by birth and has lost a son in action. However, he has given no intimation of his attitude and refused again this morning to state how he intended to vote. It is known that tremendous pressure has been brought to bear upon him to stand by Laurier. If he votes against the bill it is presumed that he will carry with him all of the English Liberals. This would mean that the bill would have a perilously close majority.

THEIR STANDING

The standing of the parties in the senate is now 45 Conservatives and 39 Liberals. Two French-Canadian Conservatives, Senators Landry and Montclair, have already intimated their intention to vote against the bill. This would make the voting 43 to 41. Senator Beaubien is being counted on as a supporter of the bill, but if he deserts it would make a tie to be broken by the casting vote of Speaker Borden, who, although a French-Canadian, is credited with being a conscriptionist.

Rumor has it that the vote may furnish a big surprise, and that Senator Belcourt, one of the leading French Liberals, and a leader in the Ontario bilingual fight, may vote for the bill. Senator Belcourt visited the front last year with the parliamentary party, and it is said that he returned deeply impressed with the need for further reinforcements and the necessity of keeping Canada's forces at full strength in the field.

TO THE CONVENTION

There will be an exodus of western members to Winnipeg this week to attend the big Liberal convention.

The convention opens Tuesday and most of the delegates will leave on Friday night. Dr. Michael Clark will address the students of the Manitoba Agricultural college on Monday night. There is intense interest in the capital in this convention, as it is realized that it is one of the most important political gatherings ever held in Canada. The fate of the union government, and whether or not the next election will hinge upon this convention. As Ottawa sees the next election, it will largely depend upon the the west.

Quebec will go almost solid, anti-conscription. Antis at Ottawa are boasting that of the 65 seats in Quebec, Laurier, at the next election, will control 64. They concede only one seat, Westmount, to a conscriptionist candidate. It is probable that an exception, but undoubtedly the Laurier candidates will sweep the province.

ONTARIO WILL OFFSET

Ontario on the other hand will offset Quebec. In the maritime provinces party lines are closely drawn and the issues are not expected to be much different, they vote names, not issues. The result is that the working majority of a conscription government will depend largely on the west. In the parliament the west will have fifty-seven seats, or an increase of no less than twenty-two. Realizing this, there is a tremendous struggle going on behind the scenes for control of this convention.

CLARK IS LEADER

Most of the western members, led by Dr. Clark, are strongly in favor of a union government. Hon. Frank Oliver will make a fight to have the convention line up behind Laurier, and some of the western members are apprehensive that an effort has been made by the Liberal political machine, which still controls the organization, to hand-pick the delegates and to send men who will either accept Laurier's leadership or, failing that, insist on a separate western Liberal party. The Laurierites would much prefer this to union, as they figure they would be able to unite overnight once the election was over.

Appeal to Producers

(Wait Mason)
Oh, hens, get busy laying eggs, keep things in steady motion; we want to ship a million kegs to friends across the ocean. In times of peace one egg a day we all considered plenty, but in these times of stress and fray you ought to turn out twenty. The hen that will not do her best, can't have me as a backer; no loyalty is in her breast, she is a timorous slacker. So, Brahma, Leghorn, Plymouth Rock, Minorca, Scrub and Dorking, lay eggs, lay eggs, all round the clock, and make a record cooking! You should be, in the country's plight, its staunchest friends and boosters. Lay eggs, lay eggs, by day and night! Quit flirting with the roosters! Oh, coveys! "The grass is like as silk," I hear you glibly matter, and you should turn out tubs of milk and fifty kinds of butter. In times of peace we didn't care if you went dry or balky, but now that shrapnel fills the air, such conduct is too rocky. We've kept your stumps, your horne hands, with most expensive grub full, and now that milk is in demand, you ought to have a tubful. Speed up, speed up, if you would save the land from ruin attend! Don't like a bunch of steers behave, but turn out milk and butter.

NATIONAL GOVERNMENT PLEDGED TO PROSECUTE THE WAR DEMANDED BY THE PEOPLE

PARTY POLITICS MUST GO UNTIL AFTER THE WAR.

Ontario Convention of Win-the-War Liberals and Conservatives at Toronto Show Feeling of the People

Toronto, August 3.—The new spirit which is sweeping the country, breaking down partisan considerations and uniting the people in the face of a solemn crisis, was reflected throughout the convention of win-the-war Liberals and Conservatives, which closed its business sessions at the arena here this afternoon, and was followed by a mass meeting of women in the arena tonight, at which the resolutions adopted by the convention were endorsed.

A large and representative committee appeared in the closing hour of the convention left tonight for Ottawa to present the resolutions to Sir Robert Borden, whose project of a union war government has received a powerful impetus from this impressive gathering of men from all over the province, pursuing the patriotic course in preference to pandering to party politics.

THE RESOLUTIONS

The convention declared itself for a national non-partisan government in the following resolution:

"Whereas, this convention, deeply deploring, as it does, the holding of a general election in time of war,

"Resolves, first, that the prime minister should, without delay, form a national non-partisan government representative of all who demand vigorous prosecution of the war, and in determining upon its members should disregard previous party affiliation.

"Secondly: Immediately upon the formation of such a national non-partisan government the leader of such government is to introduce a resolution requesting the extension of the term of parliament."

Majority of Westerners Favor Union Government With Borden as Premier

Result May Be Serious Split in Winnipeg Convention

OTTAWA, August 3.—Most of the western members leave tonight for the big Liberal convention, which opens next Tuesday in Winnipeg. The western members like the western delegates will be divided into three groups. 1.—There are Liberals who want to come out under the banner of Sir Wilfrid Laurier. 2.—There are those who want to see a separate Liberal party formed under a western leader. They are opposed to union with the Borden government. 3.—There are those who believe the only solution of the present situation is the formation of a strong win-the-war party.

Hon. Frank Oliver and Dr. Mulloy, of Provencher, are the only representatives of the first class. They are for fighting on straight party lines with Laurier as leader.

HOW THEY LINE UP

The views of the remaining leading western members can be summed up as follows: Dr. Clark, of Red Deer, out and out union advocate and in any event will run as independent supporter of Sir Robert Borden.

George McCraney, Saskatchewan, would like to see union, but fears obstacles in the way are too great. Thinks formation of a separate party which might unite after elections likely what will happen. Is pessimistic as to union.

W. A. Buchanan, Lethbridge, favors union and is optimistic that events will force it.

James Douglas, Strathcona, favors union and is hopeful that it will come.

W. E. Knowles wants separate Liberal party with separate platform. Opposed to both Laurier and Borden and Borden leadership.

J. G. Turfitt, Assiniboia, unionist, realizes difficulties but is hopeful.

EXPECTING A SPLIT

It is significant that the majority of the western members are in favor of union. They are on the ground, understand the situation, know how determined Laurier is to maintain his domination of Liberalism. What the western members fear is that the delegates will not be representative of the feeling of the rank and file of the Liberal party, but will represent rather the machine, whose one idea is to win the election.

Western members are of the opinion that the third day of the convention will be a second convention of the war Liberals, who are prepared to drop politics and join with

A BREEZY INCIDENT

A breezy incident marked the discussion of the resolution. Sergeant Turley gave a heated denunciation of an incident of the great mass meeting. The chairman, J. M. Godfrey, and one of the chief speakers, had shown a tendency, he alleged, to shield Sir Wilfrid Laurier, adding: "We soldiers have been thinking it over and we don't like the attitude of people who would shield traitors, and we don't desire to be affiliated with any such party, for we consider them our enemies."

Mr. Turley alleged that Mr. Knight, Dominion secretary of the Great War Veterans' Association, had been checked in his address before his time came up by Mr. Godfrey when he began to criticize Sir Wilfrid Laurier.

Mr. Godfrey, in explaining, said that the arrangement had been to give from 8 to 8.50 o'clock to the soldiers. The time table had been carried out to the minute, and that was the reason for checking Mr. Knight's speech. Further defending himself, Mr. Godfrey said that he thought his own speech showed plainly enough that he was not trying to shield Sir Wilfrid Laurier.

Mr. Frank Wise, secretary of the convention, made it clear that the whole trouble had arisen out of the convention keeping so strictly to its time table, and Capt. Matheson, of the G.W.V.A., said the explanation was satisfactory.

SINGLE CANDIDATES

Among the other resolutions passed was one that in the event of an election win-the-war elements in each constituency should unite upon a single candidate pledged to win.

LOOKS AT WINNIEP

WINNIEP, August 2.—The spirit of the western Liberal convention can be more or less accurately analyzed today, in view of the fact that all the delegates who will attend have been selected and a program of action has been instructed. The first business session will be held Tuesday morning, but much of the action that will be staged in formal convention will have worked out Saturday and Sunday.

It is now obvious that the gathering will be turbulent and that there will be much absence of harmony, but because it suggests a real democratic conference. From the instructions to various delegates and known feelings of others it is estimated by a well-known Liberal of Winnipeg, who has contributed much to bring the forces together, that from twenty to thirty per cent. of the delegates will stick to Laurier as a leader and insist that the old Liberal leader's idea of conducting the war, if at all, on the voluntary system is the correct solution. This element will resist all efforts to appoint a western leader, it is thought, and will be a dividing factor to the point even of forming a rump convention, splitting the assembly in its first day's deliberations.

ORGANIZE SEPARATELY

In this event they are expected to organize separately and declare for Laurier as their leader. This is the big menace to the success of the plan designed by the influential forces in Liberal circles throughout the west, who hope to see in this convention the vehicle by which the party may interpret its feelings on conscription correctly and work out a union government scheme in spirit, if not in actual arrangements.

Conscriptionists will control the resolutions committee and will carry through by a considerable majority the resolution of first importance for conscription and for separation of the western Liberals from Laurier's leadership. The split between them will be as to who will be named as leader.

J. A. Calder, the astute minister of the Saskatchewan government, unquestionably has the first call on the leadership. He has the support of the Saskatchewan delegates, who favor divorce of east and west, and some from Alberta. The Manitoba delegates favor Hon. A. B. Hudson. There has been a suggestion by E. R. Killip, editor of the Free Press, might be acceptable to both the Calder and Hudson factions as leader, and Sir Clifford Sifton's following. The attitude of the Free Press for the western party and for the rejection of Laurier on the conscription policy has given the editor much voice among Liberals of independent thought. The indications, however, favor ultimate compromise in Calder. He is an experienced political general with a long record of political triumphs in the west.

THE BIG FIGHT

The big fight in the convention will come first on the adoption of the conscription resolution and then the resolution of Laurier as leader of western Liberals, and the selection of a new man to lead the western wing of the party. These questions are expected to be the main business of the delegates and afterwards will come the problem of a union government plan, possibly negotiation with representatives of Sir Robert Borden and the working out of a campaign routine on which the election would be fought. In that event the old machinery of the Liberal forces will be left in the hands of the wing of the convention which has refused to disown Laurier. They will claim to represent the Liberal party and may name candidates in opposition through the west to the union or conscription forces.

A STUMBLING BLOCK

The chief stumbling block, admitted even by those Liberals of independent thought and action, is Sir Clifford Sifton's view should be followed with reference to a union government and one set of candidates only for the conscription forces, is practical campaign machinery for interpreting the wishes of the convention into practical action. Three-fourths of the delegates of both parties have been named already. Who will retire and who will be appointed is part of the program that is being planned. Representatives who have been constantly in conference here for the past ten days.

WHERE THEY SUFFER

The west is obviously suffering for the part of first class organization of the provincial and federal seats. The nominations of both parties have chiefly been dictated for federal purposes in other years by the Ottawa organization, and the ultimate authority vested, of course, in their respective leaders. The time the-war policies, and that such candidate should not accept the nomination of any political party nor represent it.

Another resolution recorded a deep-seated conviction against the accumulation of wealth out of the exigencies of war and called upon the government to conscript in large measure exorbitant profits due to the war.

Further resolutions called for three months' leave of absence for the men at the front; an increase in pay, and a guarantee that all soldiers be given a vote in the event of a general election, and that no expense be spared to see that they are given proper knowledge of the issues involved.

MILLOY MOTIONS

On the motion of Capt. Mulloy, the convention declared that at this crisis in the history of Canada, the following principles ought to be adopted by all true Canadians:

"That Canada must dedicate all resources of men and means to winning the war;

"That in order to justify our national existence to succeed our living land to be worthy of our dead, resources conscriptive of men and resources must be immediately adopted and enforced to maintain the strength of all forces at the front, and to discharge our full duties in the existing emergency;

"That a national non-partisan government must be established, for the vigorous prosecution of the war;

"That no activities incident to approaching election be allowed to delay the imperial enforcement of the military service bill of 1917 immediately upon its becoming law.

CONSECRATE A NEW

"That all elements in the country which place winning the war above all other considerations, must be united to the end that they may be made effective to overcome selfishness and indifference, and that the people of Canada may be consecrated anew to their high destiny of service in the war;

"That action on all controversial questions not affecting the war must so far as possible, be postponed until after the war;

"That measures in accord with the above principles are greater than men, and that allegiance to any leader who has not himself accepted these principles is inconsistent with the win-the-war principles;

"And this convention, therefore, declares that it will not approve but will take steps to oppose the parliamentary candidacy of any person who does not endorse the above principles."

PLEASE PRO-GERMANS

Speaking of Sir Wilfrid Laurier's attitude toward conscription, the blind Col. Mulloy said the voluntary system in Canada must necessarily please every pro-German on this continent. The man who stood against conscription would get the vote of the disloyal, the sedition, the alien enemy.

"Are we to allow the destiny of this country to be placed in the hands of a group of men who hold these principles?" he asked. "No, we will not give them support, nor to anyone who does not repudiate all connection with the anti-conscriptionists."

Benjamin Gould said that facts had to be squarely met. It was requisite for the soul of Canada that they leave Laurier. An aero-hat could maybe ride two horses at once, but only when the two horses were going in the same direction. It was imperative that no win-the-war candidate should support Sir Wilfrid or any candidate who professed allegiance to Laurier.

The women's mass meeting tonight was a marked success in keeping with the patriotic nature of the event. Two thousand women arose and pledged themselves to do everything in their power to win the war.

A message of loyalty and devotion was sent to the king.

is too short now to get very far away from this old practice, though it is the desire of the west to do that very thing—permit each constituency to name its candidates regardless of any Ottawa official in the convention. To that extent this movement of the western Liberals is expected to make for independent action for the rank and file of both old parties.

TORY CONVENTION

In the meantime the possibility of the Conservatives of the west calling a convention as soon as the Liberal convention opens, it will apparently only be done in the event of the Liberals who favor union are arrested in the majority at the convention starting Monday. But there will be certain representatives of Sir Robert Borden in Winnipeg from next Sunday, who will have authority to make representations on his behalf to responsible committees of the convention, it is asserted.

Palestine May Be Given Its Independence

WASHINGTON, August 1.—Italy is co-operating with the British in the British campaign in the belief that Palestine will be turned into an independent state, it has been learned. Italy was invited to join with the British as she had troops to spare. The understanding between Britain and Italy does not specify, however, the nature of the new state to be, or whether it shall be Zionist.

Italy has refrained from taking any position in regard to the Zionist movement, inasmuch as there is no Jewish question in Italy, and the government has not been specially interested in the Zionist undertaking. Italy would, however, it was declared, desire a free Palestine as a link of the east with the west.

Cincinnati man tells how to shiver up corns or calluses so they lift off with fingers.

Quick ! ! ! ! This kind of rough talk will be heard here in town if people troubled with corns will follow the simple advice of this Cincinnati authority. He claims that a few drops of a drug called freezezone when applied with his special freezing machine will cause the corns or calluses to dry up and lift off without pain.

He says freezezone dries immediately and never inflames or even irritates the skin. A small bottle of any freezezone will cost very little at any drug store, but will positively remove every hard set corn or callus from one's feet. Millions of American women will welcome this announcement since the inauguration of the high heels. If your druggist doesn't have freezezone let him to order a small bottle for you.

CZERNOWITZ'S CAPTURED BY THE HUNS

This is the Tenth Time the Bukovina Capital Has Changed Hands

VIENNA, via Amsterdam, August 3.—Austro-Hungarian troops have entered Czernowitz, the capital of the crown land of Bukovina.

Czernowitz has been the scene of some of the most bitter fighting of the war and the Bukovina capital has changed from Teuton to Russian hands altogether ten times.

Czernowitz was first captured by the Russians from Austro-Hungarians September 4th, 1914, only to be evacuated a few weeks later. In November of that year the Russians again occupied the city and held it until February, 1915. In the following month the Russians again returned to the attack and after a terrific battle stormed the capital and drove the Austrians out. This time the Russians held the position for only two weeks. Twice in January, 1916, the seat of the crown land changed hands and in June of that year the city was captured by the Russians and held until the present time.

Czernowitz is situated on a hill some 100 feet high, and is about 140 miles southeast of Lemberg, the capital of Galicia. Before the war its population was about 70,000.

STILL RETIRING

PETROGRAD, August 3.—Krimulov, a southern Bukovina, has been evacuated by the Russians, the war office announced today.

The Russians are now engaged with the Austro-German forces on the river Bystritsa. Between the Diester and the Pruth the Russian retirement is continuing. The Russian forces in southeastern Galicia, the official announcement says, after a battle with the Austro-Germans retired across the river Znaem at its confluence with the river Diester.

The Keeping of Poultry

A well kept perfect handbook on the keeping, breeding and raising of poultry, whether in a large way or a small way, has been issued by the Dominion Department of Agriculture. The title of the work is "Poultry-Keeping in Town and Country," and its official style is Bulletin No. 90 of the Division of Poultry, the Dominion Poultry Handbook, Mr. F. C. Elford, being the author. In his introduction to the 48 pages of which the Bulletin consists, Mr. Elford points out that poultry is suited to all conditions, takes a small outlay to start an interest in, requires no special resources, and can be made profitable as a side line, and then proceeds to describe the methods that should be followed, and the requirements in backyard, farmyard or any other form of poultry-raising. With 70 illustrations, including a house of varieties, proper and profitable management, selection of birds for mating, hatching and rearing, much of the information in the book is of practical value to the poultry-keeper. It is an exceptionally wide demand for this bulletin, which can be had free by applying to the Publications Branch of the Department of Agriculture, Ottawa.

In another column is an announcement of a regatta at Sylvan Lake on Wednesday next, August 15. As this is a half-holiday no doubt a number of our readers will be in Red Deer, especially if the weather is favorable.

At a meeting of the Public School Board on Tuesday last week, Miss Emma Gudmundson and Miss Annie Springstead were chosen to fill the vacancies on the Public School staff. They were the only local applicants who had first class certificates.

A meeting of the congregation of St. Luke's Church will be held in the basement of the Parish Hall on Friday, August 10th, at 8 p.m., for the purpose of electing a People's Warden to succeed Mr. Hillinghurst. The many friends of Mrs. Cyril Clark will learn with deep regret of her sudden death on Monday, July 30th, at her home in Edmonton. Rev. Arthur O. Rose, B.A., of Winnipeg, happened in the city over Sunday, paying a brief visit to his brother-in-law, Rev. J. S. Woods, of the Indian Institute here. He also preached a most interesting and informing sermon at the union service in the Methodist church on Sunday evening, August 5. Death Toll of 35 in Mine Disaster

CLAY, Kentucky, August 6th.—The recovery of three additional bodies in No. 7 shaft of the mine here, together with the death of one injured miner who had been rescued, brought the known death list from Saturday's explosion to 35 late tonight. About 12 men, none of whom are believed to be alive, are still entombed somewhere in the deeper workings.

Horticultural Exhibition

Our readers will be interested to know that the Horticultural Society is still a live wire, and that they are holding their Annual Exhibition in the Parish Hall on August 23rd.

This has always been one of the events of the year in Red Deer, the garden city of Alberta, and no doubt it will be as popular this year as in previous years, both with those who have plants, flowers, or vegetables which they think will bear comparison with the products of their neighbors' gardens and also with the many who love to see the display of lovely flowers, elegant pot plants, and succulent vegetables which are always so much in evidence at Red Deer Horticultural shows. The Society has been fortunate enough in again securing the services as judge, of Mr. W. H. Reader, Paris Superintendent of Canada, whose awards in the past have always given such complete satisfaction. Mr. Reader has this year kindly supplied a pamphlet which will be obtainable from the committee, which deals with the general principles governing the judging of the merits of the different kinds of garden products. This should be interesting, and at the same time have an educational value for all garden lovers.

The Society's effort to promote the cultivation of vacant lots and to secure a bumper crop of potatoes was only partially successful, but several new citizens took up land thus secured for them by the Society and probably not much land has lain vacant this summer, and in Red Deer, at any rate, there is little risk of a potato famine.

Remember the date, Thursday, August 23rd.

Belgian Relief

The Editor, News, Red Deer.

Dear Sir—The Local Committee for Belgian Relief have received the following circular letter from the Central Committee, Montreal, showing that good work is still being done in Canada to relieve the distress of the Belgian children. The Local Committee still keep their fund open for receiving subscriptions for this charitable work.

If you can spare the space, I shall be obliged if you would publish this short letter.

Yours truly,
 F. C. WHITEHOUSE,
 Honorary Secy-Treas.

"Thanks to the continued generosity that is being made to the appeal on behalf of stricken Belgium, we were able to send today to the Belgian Government, Le Havre, the sum of $33,500, the bulk of which is to be used to relieve the distress of the poor Belgian children."

"An urgent and poignant appeal for funds is sent by these organizations whose object is the caring and feeding of the Belgian children whose rescue from disaster has been helped by three years of near-starvation."

"The distress amongst them is acute, and the need of funds pressing."

"May we therefore ask that you persevere in your noble efforts on behalf of the martyred nation of Europe."
